Sorry, Wrong Number

Leona Stevenson is the spoiled bedridden daughter of a wealthy businessman. One day while listening to what seems to be a crossed telephone connection she hears two men planning a women's murder. The call cuts off without Leona learning very much except it is scheduled for 11:15 when a passing train will hide any sound. Author Lucille Fletcher had an exceptional flair for writing terror for radio. The radio drama premiered in 1943 and became one of the most legendary radio plays of all time. NEAT will present the radio play with live music and sound effects as originally intended. In cooperation with the New English American Theater Stuttgart and the Theater am Olgaeck.
