Dark Monday: Einstein by Gabriel Emanuel

The story is set in Albert Einstein's study at Princeton University on his 70th birthday. Einstein reflects on both his personal and professional life, while reliving his most painful dilemma going against his pacifist beliefs or encouraging the development of the atomic bomb. With this performance NEAT celebrates the centennial of several remarkable events in Einstein's life. Mit dem New English American Theatre Stuttgart . Entrance 5 Euro.

Slide Show – The Lake District in Great Britain

The Lake District also called “The Lakes” is a national park in North-West-Region of England. The first UNESCO World Heritage in England. The weather there is different, sometimes warm and mild, sometimes pretty stormy and rainy. It might change from one hour to the other due to the near Atlantic impact. The landscape is rough, wild , romantic and contains 18 lakes and a lot of bald mountains called the “Fells”. This program is free of cost. No reservation necessary. Just come and enjoy the slide show. More info. Dolly Wilson 0175-5571560
